TWO PARALYSIS CASES WATCHED IN COUNTY AREA

Children In Atlanta And Derby Communities Stricken

BOTH REPORTED MILD

Two Fever Quarantines In Circleville Taken Down; Two Remain

Two cases of infantile paralysis, both mild cases, were reported in Pickaway County Friday by Health Commissioner Dr. A. D. Blackburn. Health officers report that both cases are being carefully guarded to prevent exposure of other persons and a development of a possible epidemic in the county.

One of the victims is Elaine Stoker, 12 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stoker, of near Atlanta. Dr. Blackburn described the Stoker girl's condition as a "typical but mild case." The girl became ill last Saturday and had not gone to school this week. She had received no medical attention until Thursday night when Dr. Blackburn examined her and said he believed she had already passed through the first stages of the disease. Paralysis appeared in the girl's legs Wednesday.

Elaine's brother Billy, 10, in the fifth grade at Atlanta School, attended school until the family was quarantined Thursday night. Dr. Blackburn pointed out that since Elaine had not attended school since she became ill, there was little danger of exposure to her seventh grade classmates, or to the other children in Atlanta School. The girl is now under doctor's care and is being treated at home.

Other case, reported by Dr. C. R. Smith, Harrisburg, is two-year-old Gary Eugene Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Berlyn Cox, Derby. The child became ill last Saturday, and was taken to University Hospital, Columbus. Thursday night after it showed symptoms of the disease. A final check will be made at the hospital to verify the examination of Dr. Smith. Since the child has been taken to the hospital, the family will not be placed under quarantine, Dr. Blackburn said. The boy has no brothers or sisters.

Scarlet fever quarantine on Virginia Griner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyell Griner, 707 South Court Street, was raised Thursday, city health officials reported, with the quarantine on Jack Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Young, 138 East Mill Street, to be raised Friday.

Shirley Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Thomas, East Mill Street, will be released from quarantine soon and Richard Haynes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Haynes, 146 East Mill Street, on October 30. No other cases have been reported in the city.

NAZIS OPEN BIG LONDON ATTACK

Nearly 500 Bombers And Fighters Contested By Isle's Defenders

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The Royal Air Force piled up one of the biggest aerial "baps" in history today, with an official tally of 98 German aircraft shot down and destroyed up to 5 p. m. (noon EST) during a series of raids by 500 Nazi bombers and fighters on London and other cities of England.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—With ideal protective weather conditions aiding them, nearly 500 German bombers and fighters attacked London today in a series of full-scale assaults, but by lunchtime it was estimated that at least 25 or 30 had been shot down.

An earlier official British announcement, issued while the fighting was at its height, said that 18 German planes had been destroyed.

The Nazis attacked London and other objectives in southern England but met terrific opposition from anti-aircraft batteries and RAF fighters which took a heavy toll.

DOVER, Eng. — German big guns across the English Channel shelled Dover again this afternoon. Eight huge shells landed. Exact damage has not been ascertained. British guns replied as soon as the German weapons opened fire, and the duel proceeded for some time at the rate of a round a minute.

The strike was reportedly designed to discredit American, French, and other foreign officials in the French and International Settlements of Shanghai.

HOLMES COUNTY CHILD VICTIM OF PARALYSIS

MILLERSBURG, Sept. 27.—Infantile paralysis today caused the death of Larry Sanders, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl O. Sanders, in Cleveland city hospital. He was Holmes County's first recent victim of the disease and had been in an "iron lung" since last May.

THIS is the United States' newest warplane, the Lockheed P-38, fastest in the world, shown on a test flight over Burbank, Calif., during which the plane did 350 m.p.h. The interceptor-pursuit ship flies more than 500 m.p.h., says Major General Henry H. Arnold, U. S. Army Air Corps chief. Its propellers rotate in opposite directions.

NATIONAL GUARD TO PASS WINTER IN FAMED AREA

COLUMBUS, Sept. 27.—Ohio National Guardsmen called up for a year's training on October 15 will spend the winter in a region famous in the history of the United States, and also widely known as a winter resort, it was explained today at Fort Hayes, headquarters of the Fifth Corps area.

Camp Shelby, where all but a few units of the Ohio guard will train, lies 12 miles south of Hattiesburg, Mississippi, 65 miles off the Gulf of Mexico, 130 miles from New Orleans and 600 miles from Columbus.

The camp covers 5,100 acres. During the World War Camp Shelby served as the training site of the 38th division, troops from Indiana, West Virginia and Kentucky, and housed 36,000 men.

After the war the cantonment there was torn down, but about six years ago Mississippi took over the site as a training camp for its national guard. Several permanent buildings were erected and underground water and lighting systems installed.

There is an artillery range site near the camp and the reservation adjoins the 120,000-acre De Soto national forest. The average temperature is 81 degrees in summer and 51 degrees in winter.

RECORD CROWD TO INVADE CITY

Facilities At High School Field To Be Taxed; Grid Game Starts At 8

Circleville school officials said Friday afternoon that all attendance records at the school football field may be broken tonight when Lancaster High School's team comes to Circleville.

J. Wray Henry, high school principal, said that he had had the third request from Lancaster school officials for student tickets and that permission had been requested to sell adult tickets in Lancaster to persons intending to come to Circleville.

It is certain that the field's seating capacity will prove far inadequate since last week's crowd estimated at 1,200 overflowed. The only reserved seats will be for persons holding season tickets, this section being roped off. Platforms have been erected for bands of the two schools.

Lancaster has one of the biggest football teams to come to Circleville in many years, but Coach Roy M. Black and his varsity athletes were unanimous in the opinion Friday that they would put up the best game possible. Lancaster's weight advantage will be about 18 pounds to the man.

The kickoff is scheduled at 8 o'clock.

VINCENT ASTOR, NO. 1 ELIGIBLE, MARRIES TODAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Vincent Astor, largest single owner of New York real estate and the country's No. 1 "matrimonial catch," was married today to Mary Cushing, daughter of Mrs. Harvey Cushing of New Haven, Conn., it was revealed in an exclusive story by Cholly Knickerbocker, society editor of the New York Journal-American.

There had been rumors that Astor would make Miss Cushing his bride, the story said, but news of the wedding at East Hampton, L. I., will come as a complete surprise to society. Plans for the ceremony had been kept secret until almost the moment that Astor arrived at "Heatherburne," the ocean-front villa where Mrs. Cushing had passed the summer.

'UNITED FRONT' PACT NOT NEW, CAPITAL CLAIMS

Aid Short Of War To Be Provided, Secretary Of State Maintains

TREATIES BEING BROKEN

Washington Admits Embargo On Iron Direct Blow At Japanese

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Conclusion of the German-Italian-Japanese "united front" pact merely formalizes a situation that has existed for many months and which already has been discounted in American diplomatic planning, Washington officials said today.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull long has observed, informed officials said, that the three totalitarian states "back each other's diplomatic plays." Announcement of the pact, it was emphasized, will have absolutely no effect on Washington's policy of supporting Great Britain by measures "short of war" and insisting on the observance of its treaty rights in the Far East.

Hull made America's diplomatic position plain in an informal talk with reporters yesterday just after President Roosevelt announced the imposition of an embargo on scrap iron—vital war material—because of Japan's invasion of French Indo-China in violation of the four-power Pacific pact.

Must Take Consequences

He recalled that in 1937 he had sent a diplomatic note to every nation in the world telling them that this country insisted on the observance of treaties and changes in territorial domination only through peaceful negotiation. If, he added, some nations choose to violate treaties, they must take the consequences.

American officials bitterly resent Japanese and German statements implying that the United States is interfering with matters that do not concern it. From Hull's point of view, American policy in both Europe and the Far East is based merely on a defense of the United States' treaty as far as it affects American interests.

Informed Washington observers believe that conclusion of the German-Italian-Japanese pact will have the inevitable effect of forcing the democratic powers—the United States, Great Britain and the Latin-American nations—into still closer cooperation.

State Department sources, frankly admitting that the iron embargo was directed squarely at the Japanese for their treaty-smashing invasions of China and French Indo-China, discounted forecasts that this government's (Continued on Page Four)

JAPAN AND U. S. NEARLY EQUAL IN NAVAL STRENGTH

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Japan is rapidly nearing naval parity with the United States as a result of her secret, six-year warship construction program and through fortification of strategic Pacific islands, American marine experts declared today.

These experts, seeking to penetrate the wall of secrecy surrounding Nipponese sea power, estimated that Japan probably has 280 ships afloat, not counting midget submarines, minesweepers and other auxiliaries.

Although the United States has slightly more than 350 ships in commission, naval strategists concede that this numerical superiority is offset considerably by Japanese naval bases located strategically in vital Far Eastern ocean areas.

F. D. PLANS TOUR OF ADDITIONAL DEFENSE BASES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 — President Roosevelt will swing out on another inspection tour of national defense facilities over the week end, he announced today, visiting the Aberdeen, Md., proving grounds, the Martin company's aviation plant in Baltimore and Camp Meade, Md.

The chief executive planned to leave Washington late tomorrow aboard the White House yacht Potomac and cruise leisurely down the river and up the Chesapeake Bay over Sunday, arriving at Aberdeen Monday morning.

After a tour of the army's gun testing grounds the President will motor to Baltimore and then to Camp Meade, returning to the national capital late Monday afternoon. There will be no speeches, he said.

A reporter asked if there was any political significance involved in his tour.

Mr. Roosevelt suggested that the reporter figure it out for himself.

FRENCH PROTEST JAPS' BOMBING OF HAIPHONG

HAIPHONG, French Indo-China, Sept. 27.—French authorities in Indo-China today lodged a strong protest with Japan against the asserted bombing of the port of Haiphong yesterday shortly before Japanese forces landed there. (A dispatch from Shanghai said at least 15 persons were killed when Japanese planes bombed the native quarter near Haiphong.)

Military Alliance Informs United States To Choose Between Full Participation Or Non-Belligerency In Conflict

"UNDECLARED" WARFARE ASSAILED

Washington's Activity In Far East On Side Of Britain Scored; Hitler Sees Ambassadors Put Names On Papers

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—In answer to President Roosevelt's alleged "silent alliance" with Great Britain, Nazi Germany today announced conclusion of a tri-partite military alliance embracing Germany, Italy and Japan.

With the warning that any American intervention in Europe or the Far East will be confronted by the "concentrated power of 250,000,000 people," the pact as expounded by Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop is intended basically to inform the United States she is now faced with a choice between open participation in the war and non-belligerency.

Soon, it was said, Germany and Italy will begin to deal with Spain as the "mother country" of Latin-America as another step in the axis' "anti-American front."

Informed German quarters characterized the agreement, signed under the eyes of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, as the first tom-tom beat heralding approach of the war to the doorstep of the United States "unless America abandons her undeclared warfare."

Embargo Partially Blamed

The American embargo of scrap iron to Japan, rumors of a forthcoming Anglo-American agreement giving the United States a naval base at Singapore undoubtedly played a part in the agreement.

Germany, Italy and Japan now take the attitude, it was said, that the next move and decision lie with America. It is a case of "take it or leave it," but in the meantime, German officials said, the agreement means that Britain is doomed regardless of what Washington does.

Announcement of the pact was described as another characteristic Hitler "blitz" move to forestall "footloose American intervention in the Far East on behalf of England" by allying herself with Japan.

In the immediate future, informed quarters said, Germany and Italy will begin to deal with Spain as the "mother country" of Latin-American nations, and although plans in this regard are not yet complete, this arrangement stands in the offing as "another vital and potential link in the axis anti-American front."

The pact was signed in the chancellery before an audience composed mostly of journalists. No diplomats were present except German, Italian and Japanese keymen. Ironically, in view of the nature of the pact, the Japanese ambassador, Saburo Kurosu, is married to an American woman. The Japanese envoy was the only official present in civilian clothes.

Hans Dieckhoff, German ambassador to Washington long since recalled, was among the Germans present. Others were Chief of Staff Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, Air Force Marshal Ernst (Continued on Page Four)

STOCK LEADERS FALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 — The stock market reacted further today on news of the Japanese-Axis alliance. Leaders were down a point or more before meeting support, but the retreat was orderly and trading continued at a slow pace.

Varied Views of Pact

LONDON—An axis coup to immobilize the American fleet and render it harmless to Nazi Germany in the Atlantic was seen by British officialdom today as the underlying object of the Italo-German-Japanese military pact signed in Berlin.

In return for Japan's gesture in throwing military and moral support to axis designs in Europe, it was said, Germany has promised to supply Japan with vital materials she can no longer obtain from other sources.

ROME—A sharp warning to the United States to keep out of war in Europe and the Far East was delivered today by Virgilio Gayda, Premier Mussolini's press spokesman.

MADRID—The United States long ago abandoned neutrality and must now choose between a reversal of policy or immediate entry into the war, the authoritative Madrid newspaper ABC declared today.

TOKYO—The controlled press of Tokyo warned today that a "frontal clash" between essential interests of Japan and the United States is becoming inevitable.

Assailing the "hostile meddling" of the United States even as Japanese officialdom sought to minimize the anti-American aspects of the tripartite agreement signed in Berlin, Tokyo newspapers bluntly told Washington to keep its hands off Japanese affairs.

Atlanta School Scene Of Celebration By Scioto Farms Organization

MANY EVENTS PLANNED

Grain, Vegetable, Sewing Exhibits To Be Judged During Festival

Nineteen committees are busy making plans for the second annual "Annifair," sponsored by the Scioto Farms Project families of the Atlanta community. The fair will be held at the Atlanta school house during the evening of October 8, and all day and evening of October 9 and 10. Fair officials predict that the event, which attracted an estimated crowd of 2,000 persons last year, will have an even greater attendance this year.

Atlanta school board members have announced that facilities of the school building and grounds will be available for the occasion. Tents to accommodate livestock and poultry exhibits will be set up and out-of-door organized recreation and demonstrations staged on the school grounds. The old gymnasium will house grain, vegetable and sewing exhibits.

Swine and dairy cattle judging will take place during the afternoon of October 9 and draft horse judging during the forenoon of the following day. The "Equine Remote Control Contest" will be repeated this year. In the contest, farmers will guide their horses through difficult lanes of a specially designed court by word of mouth only. A "Home Made Garment Revue" will feature one of the afternoon programs. Additional features include motion pictures, one act plays, magical performance, local music and dramatic talent, and sale of baked goods, soaps and sweets.

Each evening of the fair, square dances will be held. Refreshments will be prepared and served on the grounds by Scioto Farms Project ladies. A Nursery school planned to care for children of mothers attending the "Annifair," will be sponsored by the Atlanta Smith-Hughes Home Economics department.

The Scioto Farms Project is one of 175 resettlement projects in the United States and is part of the program of the Federal Farm Security Administration.

PLANS OUTLINED TO HIT DODGERS OF DRAFT LAW

Federal Officials Expect Communities To Act As
Own Watchdogs

CLASSIFICATIONS SET UP

No "Slacker" Roundup To Be Made Under New Conscription

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27—Approximately 20 classifications will be set up to tell the 16,500,000 potential conscripts who register under the new draft law which men will be called up first and which men will be deferred from service, it was learned today.

This information was gained as Washington officials revealed that they would rely on communities of the nation to act as "watch dogs" to prevent draft-dodging.

The service classifications will be announced by national draft board officials as soon as President Roosevelt signs an executive order approving them.

While the law provides for four general classifications, the general groups will be split into sub-groups, so there will be a total of 20 different listings. For instance, Class 1, it was learned, will include a group immediately available for service and a group with minor physical ailments who can be called up, if necessary.

During the World War 3,630,016 men of the 23,908,000 who registered were placed in class 1 for immediate service. About 889,000 others were placed in 1-A. Of those with minor ailments who could serve is needed.

However, under the 1940 law, which provides for the training of only 900,000 men a year, it was believed that there would be enough in the first class to fill all quotas.

Soundal To Be Averted

Meanwhile, Maj. Gen. Ben Howell, director of the manpower division of the draft board, gave assurances that the board would not conduct punitive campaigns against those who might fail to register. In 1917, general roundups were staged in at least four cities to apprehend "slackers," and a scandal resulted when some of them were mauled by police and crowds.

Howell, pointing out that it will be the job of the Department of Justice to detect draft-dodgers, emphasized that the selective service system would not engage in "sluething or police work."

However, he said that the draft board was relying on communities to become "watchdogs." That, he added, would be the first check on persons who fail to register 19 days from now.

"For instance," Howell said, "take the case of Mrs. A. and Mrs. B. who, we will say, are neighbors who both have sons of draft age. After registration the names of those who register will be posted at local draft boards. If Mrs. B's son should fail to register, Mrs. A. will see it, particularly if her son registers. And, no doubt, Mrs. A. will report the case to the authorities."

At the same time, Howell advised those of draft age, 21 to 35 inclusive, who must register, not to give addresses of what he called "sentimental homes." By that, he meant that a native of Iowa who is living and working in New York should give his New York address even though he retains legal residence in Iowa.

To Pay Transportation

Unless this person gives this New York address, he pointed out, he may be forced to pay his own transportation to report to an Iowa local draft board, if called up for duty.

Howell announced that special registration places will be set up in the 21 national parks and in CCC camps. He also announced that persons in hospitals, asylums and jails would be registered the

OHIO G. O. P. HITS STAND TAKEN BY C. OF C. OF STATE

COLUMBUS, Sept. 27 — Although Ohio Chamber of Commerce President A. Graves Williams, of Portsmouth, promised to make amends, Executive Vice-President George B. Chandler today refused comment on the demand of the Ohio Republicans in Congress that he retract an attack made on them for their vote against conscription.

A vigorous protest against Chandler's statements, made in a bulletin of the chamber, was lodged with Williams by Sen. Robert A. Taft and 12 GOP congressmen. They charged that Chandler had passed insinuations upon their patriotism.

The executive vice president, according to the complaint, urged them to vote for conscription of men, against conscription of industry and against excess profits taxes.

"We probably know more about the sentiments of the people of Ohio than does Chandler," the congressman wrote President Williams.

Although refusing comment, Chandler explained the bulletin was privately issued to Chamber of Commerce members and not intended for general distribution.

Promising to present the matter to the chamber's board of directors at its October meeting in Columbus, Williams said:

"I am sorry if a misunderstanding occurred between the Ohio Chamber of Commerce and the Ohio delegation in Congress. The bulletin originated in the office of George B. Chandler, executive vice president."

The softball team will open a six-game schedule Friday, September 27, with Adelphi at Salt Creek. The Salt Creek team is composed mostly of rookies, with a few veterans returning. Other games have been scheduled with Laurelville and Stoutsville.

One of the unusual features of the PTA meeting given on Tuesday, September 24, at 8:00 p. m. is a preview of the school year. This is shown in nine scenes, one

September was the "Opening of School"; October, "School Fair"; November, "Basketball Season"; December, "Jr. Class Play"; January, "Operetta"; February, "School Party"; March, "Scholarship Tests"; April, "Oratorical Contest"; and May, "Commencement". Suitable stanzas composed by Helen Rose Rodocker were read with each scene.

JAPAN IN AXIS; U. S. WARNED OF STRIFE DANGER

Hitler Remains Silent

Signing of the agreement took but ten minutes. While Von Ribbentrop started reading an official German declaration, Hitler leaned back in his red leather chair, staring at the chandelier. He remained silent throughout the proceeding, but conversed with the emissaries in his study later.

The agreement, with its strong anti-American implications, came hardly as a surprise to correspondents in Berlin. In the last few days a marked inclination to regard Americans living in Berlin being noticeable in the capital.

Under terms of the agreement, Foreign Minister Ribbentrop announced, Germany and Italy recognize Japan's leadership in expanding and creating a "new order" in the Far East.

In return, his announcement said, Japan sanctions and approves the search by Germany and Italy for increased "living space" in Europe.

Any power not engaged in hostilities at present which seeks to intervene in the affairs of or attack any partner in the history-making agreement "will have to deal with the concentrated power of 250,000,000 people" Von Ribbentrop said.

Should such aggression occur, the three powers will cooperate on a basis "under which they will assume mutual obligations and assist each other by economic, military and political means."

Inasmuch as the United States and Soviet Russia are the sole major powers at present not engaged in conflict, the warning to America was clear.

In disclosing the agreement, Von Ribbentrop said it would prove of "greatest importance to the three countries concerned as well as to the world."

The pact stated:

"The three governments consider it a pre-condition for lasting peace that every nation receive the room due it."

The new agreement was signed in the Reich chancellery in the presence of Chancellor Hitler a great number of German officials and members of the Italian embassies.

Von Ribbentrop signed for Germany, Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano for Italy and the Japanese ambassador for his government.

The pact stated that Germany, Italy and Japan are "resolved to cooperate in Europe and in greater East Asia with the foremost aim of creating a new order for the welfare of nations."

"Germany does not aspire to interfere on the interests of other nations."

"But the national socialist government is determined to safeguard vital German interests."

"The untenable world constellation is breaking down under Italian and German military blows."

"An international plot has succeeded in plunging the world into a bloody war. Proclamation of the tripartite pact is aimed at establishing a new order in Europe and the Far East. The pact therefore is not directed against any other nations, but against war mongers who are endeavoring to prolong and extend the war."

"The decisive part of the pact is the military alliance between the three most powerful nations of the world."

"The pact primarily is destined to help restore peace in the world as soon as possible."

"Every nation in the world is sincerely welcome to join in the pact and to cooperate."

"Any nation, however, which intends to intervene in solution of problems as outlined in the pact or to attack any partner in the pact will have to deal with the concentrated power of 250,000,000 people."

"The pact therefore will serve in securing world peace. The Italian and Japanese peoples are united with the people of the Reich in unshakable determination to fight to safeguard our freedom and future and a new and better order of lasting peace."

On behalf of the German government, Von Ribbentrop then addressed greetings to the Italian and Japanese emperors, Premier Mussolini and the Japanese government.

Count Ciano then rose to ad-

NATIONAL GUARD TO PASS WINTER IN FAMED AREA

Shelby during the World War was the best of all the divisional camps. Hattiesburg, the nearest town, has a population of 22,000.

The Mississippi Gulf coast region has played a prominent part in the development of the nation, it was pointed out. De Soto travelled through much of southern Mississippi on his exploration of the lower Mississippi valley. In the war of 1812, General Pakenham made his headquarters on Ship Island, off the coast, and there planned his disastrous attempt to capture New Orleans, blocked by the heroic defense under Andrew Jackson.

Many northerners now spend their winters in the balmy coast towns of Gulfport, Biloxi and Pascagoula.

Philip F. Wilhelm, 54, brother-in-law of Allen Thornton, Montclair Avenue, died Thursday in Memorial Hospital, Buffalo, N. Y., following an illness of two days. He had been a resident of Buffalo for two and one-half years where he had been an employee of the Standard Oil Co. He was born in Chillicothe October 20, 1885.

Surviving are his widow, Dorothy Thornton Wilhelm; two daughters, two sisters and three brothers.

The funeral will be Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Fawcett Funeral Home, Chillicothe with burial in Greenlawn Cemetery.

dress the assemblage. Facing Von Ribbentrop and Chancellor Hitler, he said:

"The three powers we represent do not wish to challenge or threaten anyone."

"Today's alliance has been framed to prevent unnecessary extension of the present conflict, and the bloc resulting from union of the military and civilian strength of three empires will represent a powerful wall against which any attempt to spread the conflagration further is bound to shatter itself."

next move would be imposition, in concert with Britain, of an oil embargo.

It was pointed out that such a move undoubtedly would result in an immediate Japanese thrust into the Dutch East Indies, whose petroleum resources are largely under control of American and British companies. Such an assault, it was explained, could not be prevented or adequately met unless a powerful Anglo-American air and naval armada was assembled at Singapore.

Singapore Base Valuable

At Singapore Britain has a fine, capacious air and naval base. Washington observers believe that recent conversations between Secretary of State Hull, Lord Lothian, the British ambassador to Washington, and Richard G. Casey, the Australian minister, have included discussion of the feasibility of granting the United States use of the Singapore base. Announcement of such an agreement under which this country's air and naval forces would be granted full rights at Singapore, must precede imposition of an oil embargo, observers said, adding that they believe that such an announcement will be the next step in the program of Anglo-American cooperation.

President Roosevelt and Hull, who followed issuance of the embargo with a new and ringing denunciation of Japanese policy, are carefully watching and evaluating Tokyo's reaction, it was learned.

The administration, qualified sources said, is particularly concerned with the possibility that a Russo-Japanese agreement, designed to free the Japanese from the constant danger of attack by the Soviets and enable Japan to enter the war on the side of the axis powers, may be consummated.

Such a development would confront the United States with threat of attack on the Pacific side, while war rages in Europe across the Atlantic. It is against such a contingency that an American "two ocean navy" is now being built.

WILLKIE'S FARM PROGRAM ABOUT SAME AS F. D.'S

ern trip which was to end at Freeport, Ill., tonight carries through to Madison, Wis.

Saturday the candidate will have 10 minutes in Chicago and then his train will move along to New York for a major speech to the Republican state convention in White Plains.

Most of the speeches on his continuing campaign trip will be of the major variety, as was the farm talk at Omaha.

In that speech, Willkie set out these points as his own in addition to those New Deal points which he endorsed:

Elimination of discrimination between different branches of agriculture and different areas.

Simplifications of regulations.

Restoration of foreign trade markets.

Continuation of distribution of surplus products to the needy.

Elimination of unnecessary employees and reduction in the cost of administration.

In addition, Willkie promised to appoint an agriculturist as secretary of agriculture and to call a White House conference of farm, labor, consumer and factory representatives to "tackle the job of ending economic stagnation and of preventing a common disaster."

Library Notes

JUST WEEDS—by E. R. Spencer.

A book planned and written for the purpose of helping the reader see weeds as they are and not just a mass of vegetation. It gives one a knowledge of weeds and their control which everyone owning a farm, garden, or lawn is eager to acquire in order to more successfully wage their continual war with these persistent pests.

RORY & BRAN—by Lord Dunsany.

This Irish novelist's story of a half-witted boy driving his father's cattle to market possesses a magic quality that makes the story memorable. The reader will find a kind of enchanting unreality and a wild air of fantasy about the characters: Bran, the dog; the jockey; the tinkler; and fierce O'Harrigan.

Strange tales of the same type, mysterious and fantastic and after the fashion of Baron Munchausen, are also to be found in another book by the same author: JORKENS REMEMBERS AFRICA.

THE INCURABLE FILIBUSTER—by D. I. Lamb.

Col. Lamb, pursued out of New Orleans in 1902, escaped to Venezuela and began 25 years of professional soldiering through the various Latin-American republics. He has taken part in 12 revolutions and, by good fortune, emerged to write about them.

COMETS—by C. P. Olivier.

The director of the Observatory of the University of Pennsylvania writes for the professional reader as well as the non-professional who knows little about astronomy. Mr. Olivier discusses the different comets and comet groups, tails and spectra of comets, meteor streams, collisions of comets and earth, the origin of comets, their changes and dissolution.

THE AMERINDIANS—by D. M. Nicol.

This is an authoritative, highly readable work on the Indians of North America from its discovery to the final wars with the western tribes. It is simply told and attempts to present the Indian's viewpoint as well as the white man's; it forms a record of a whole peoples' struggle and defeat; and there emerges a picture of what the Indian was, and what he represented to the settler, morally, socially, economically.

SKY STORMING YANKEE—by Clara Stiller.

NAZIS OPEN BIG LONDON ATTACK

southwestern town, dropping a number of bombs before ground fire broke up the formation. British fighters then pursued the Germans to the channel, reportedly shooting down several on the way.

Three air raid alarms sounded in the city while defenders of the capital sent up a terrific barrage of ground fire and scores of British fighters leaped on the attacking raiders.

In contrast to the heavy German losses, an official announcement stated, two British fighting planes were lost and the pilot of one of these was declared safe.

The third alarm of the day in London—the city's 131st since the war began, sounded as anti-aircraft guns opened up in the northern section of the city.

This was followed by the rattle of machine gun fire high in the clouds and the whine of a plane in a deep dive, leading to belief still another raider had been shot down.

During the various raids a number of bombs were dropped on the capital and there were some casualties.

After the alarm sounded for the day's second raid—the 130th of the war—heavy formation of German bombers escorted by fighters passed over London at a terrific height. Batteries in central London opened up with spasmodic fire and some bombs were dropped.

Reports from correspondents on the southeast coast indicated the Germans were making their most determined effort of the entire war to penetrate England's eastern and southwestern defenses.

LONDON, Sept. 27—Bombers of the Royal Air Force carried out heavy attacks last night and early this morning against channel ports along the French coast, German shipping, the Kiel Canal and German internal waterways, an official announcement said today.

The new British air assaults marked still another of a tremendous series of attacks on Nazi invasion bases along the channel coast and on communications within the Reich and German-occupied territory.

Carrying aerial warfare to the continent in an ever-increasing scale, waves of RAF planes early this morning dived down on the French, Belgian and Dutch coasts and bombed military preparations for the long-heralded Nazi invasion of Britain.

Wave after wave of British planes dived across the English Channel and then plunged down on their targets through low-hanging rain clouds.

A red glare illuminated mists over the channel as scores of fires were started along the continental coastline by tons of explosives dropped by the British raiders.

Flashes from bombs and the thunder of explosions could be seen by watchers on the Dover cliffs, indicating that a veritable avalanche of destruction was being poured down on the German bases along the French coast.

Many of the British planes sped toward Cap Gris Nez, where German "big Berthas" are mounted. These guns again shelled southeastern England yesterday.

The new attacks were a continuation of the mighty assault of Wednesday night and Thursday morning, when British planes spread destruction on targets in 15 cities and towns, including Berlin and the Kiel naval base.

BERLIN, Sept. 27—Over 500,000 pounds of bombs of all calibers were dropped in violent bombing attacks on London, Liverpool, Birkenhead and Southampton last night, it was announced officially by the Reich air ministry today.

Over 500,000 pounds of bombs

Changes Likely In Tiger Lineup As Gales Invade High School Lot Tonight

Woods, Callihan Certain To Receive Nod; Kline May Be At Fullback

LOCAL CREW OUTWEIGHED
Lancaster 11 Averages 170; Circleville Starters To Tip Scale At 153

With probably the biggest crowd of the year expected to be in attendance tonight at 8 o'clock as Lancaster's Golden Gales invade the high school athletic field, Coach Roy Black said Friday that several changes will be made in the Circleville lineup. Development of several boys who have been second stringers up to this time and injuries of others were cited as the reasons for the probable juggling.

Johnny Woods, who has come along fast as an end, will probably start at the left flank where George Trego has been holding forth. Trego's broken nose is still

STAR OUT, DEFINITELY
It isn't any ghost story, Wilbur Kilburger of the Lancaster Eagle-Gazette writes, concerning Owen Bradford's not being able to play against the Tigers tonight. . . Bradford has a seven-inch gash on his temple, has lost two teeth and has some face bruises as a result of an auto smash. . . Definitely, Bradford is out.

ouchy and, although he will probably be used before the game has progressed very far, Woods is expected to get the call.

Jim Callihan, speedy senior halfback, will likely start at left half where Marvin Jenkins has been seeing service. Because of death in the family Jenkins has been able to attend only one drill this week. Callihan has speed to burn and should go well at the left half slot.

Fullback Doubtful
Whether Joe Staley or Bob Kline will get the call at fullback at the start will not be determined until Coach Black decides whether the former's banged up left ankle is sufficiently strong to stand the rigors of the game. Kline has been working at full all week and may get the nod with Staley watching action at the start.

The rest of the lineup will be the same as last week, Jackson being at right end, Sabine and Liston at tackles, Crawford and Martin at guards, Brown at center, Geib at quarterback and Eby at right half.

Lancaster's team is banged up slightly, too, although strong reserves make the Gales powerful. Owen Bradford, brilliant halfback, is not expected to play because of automobile accident injuries, and Jack Miller, regular fullback, is not in tiptop shape.

Bob Radebaugh, who starred in the Columbus South game last week, will be at left half and Bob Kline—not Circleville's athlete—will be at fullback. NOTE: There is a possibility that each team will have a Bob Kline at fullback, Circleville's weighing 142 and Lancaster's 144.

Gus Wright, star right end of the Gales, is playing despite a bruised knee. Wright is one of the key men of the Lancaster outfit, doing the place kicking, starting on the defense and receiving passes.

Averages Figured
Lancaster's starting team will average 170 pounds; Circleville's 153. The Gale line end to end will average 177 pounds and the backfield will be 158. Circleville's line will weigh 160 pounds and the backs 142.

A big show is being planned between halves when the Lancaster band of 70-pieces puts on its drills. Circleville's band, only recently starting to practice drills, will be on hand, too, putting out its usual good music.

Officials for the game will be Harley Pearce of Ohio Wesleyan referee; W. K. Dunton of Ohio U., umpire, and Jim Evers of Eastern Illinois State Teachers, umpire. Lancaster has played two games, defeating Bremen, 53-0, and Co-

FELLER HOLDS INDIANS' FATE

Young Righthander Must Win To Keep Indians In Race For League Honors

CLEVELAND, Sept. 27 — Outcome of the red hot American League pennant race today was in the hands of Bobby Feller—and the New York Yankees.

Feller was selected by Cleveland Indian Manager Oscar Vitt to keep alive the Tribe's faint hope of winning the bunting, a feat that would require the Indians to win not only today, but tomorrow and the next day, and in winning defeat the league-leading Detroit Tigers. Even so, the Indians might have to face the Yankees, who could tie them by winning their remaining games against Philadelphia and Washington.

The Yankees moved up to two and one-half games behind the Tigers yesterday by defeating the Philadelphia Athletics 5 to 4 and 2 to 0 in a double header. The Tribe is two games back of Detroit and only a half game in front of the Yanks. One victory for the Tigers would eliminate the Indians and put them in a position where the Yanks could tie them by winning four straight. Two Detroit wins would seal it up, even if the Yanks kept on undefeated.

Feller's opponent today was to be Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe, the man who came back from the minors to win 16 while losing but three in the current season. Rowe beat the Indians in Detroit last week, but Feller beat the Tigers in the motor city series final Sunday. The youthful speedball artist sought his 28th victory today.

Of course, the Scarlet and Gray is favored to win. By at least three touchdowns, the guessers say. But the Panthers of Pitt, purified but still potent and on the short ends of 3 to 1 betting odds carry hidden power.

Charlie Bowser hasn't said much this fall but scouts—but legal and illegal—have warned the Scarlet to beware of "A Special Delivery" Jones, Bob Thurbon and George Kracum.

An anticipated crowd of 45,000 is expected to trek to the Buckeye Stadium for the tilt which may start the Ohio eleven toward national honors. Coach Francis Schmidt has definitely announced that his starting backfield will be composed of Quarterback Scott, Tom Kinkade, Toronto, right halfback; Captain Jimmy Langhurst at fullback and Dick Fisher, the Columbian clipper, at the other half. And that is a pretty fair backfield, without the injured Jim Strausbaugh.

Maag Has Edge
The only doubtful spot in the Buck forward wall is the right tackle post where Jim Piccinini and Charlie Maag are fighting it out for first bid. Maag, however, has an edge because of his brilliant place-kicking ability.

You can mark this down in your little red book now—the Scarlet is going to toss that leather around plenty. With Scott and Strausbaugh hitting the bulls-eye at 40 paces, the Bucks will fill the air with aerials from every position on the field. And Charlie Anderson, the Massillon Negro star, can catch anything that's inside the field.

The Buck forward wall will hold a long weight advantage over the invaders. The weight advantage will average about ten pounds to a man and for a change this Buckeye forward wall can move, especially the tackles.

Offsetting the Buckeye weight, however, will be a strong Pitt line which from tackle to tackle is the equal of the Staters. Ralph Fife, of Canton and Rudy Gradisek, a pair of battle-scarred veterans, hold down the important guard posts in the double wing system, while two giant tackles, Captain Ted Konetsky and Jack Benz, are a formidable pair. Steve Sinco, a 208-pound letterman, will handle the center duties.

That line is capable of splashing Buckeyes all over the landscape—at least for a while—but the Ohioans should win by two or three touchdowns. That is, if you can believe what you read in the papers.

BOOKIES LISTING FAVORED TEAMS IN GRID JOUSTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 — The Broadway bookies offered their first football slate of the season today in fear and trembling, uncertain of the teams on which they have no good line and prepared to slash prices at the first sign of a substantial bet.

The Broadway prices probably are far different from what is being quoted at the scenes of the various games scheduled for tomorrow and undoubtedly in many cases are out of line.

For instance, out at Los Angeles we understand U.C.L.A. is a 4 to 5 choice over Southern Methodist, but along the main drag here the bookies are quoting 8 to 10 and you pick 'em.

Tulane, also, is a slight favorite down New Orleans way but Broadway says 8 to 10 and pick, Mississippi and Louisiana State are quoted at the same figure.

Michigan opened at 2 to 1 over California but when word reached here of an injury to one of the star California backs, the large hearted bookies upped the price half a point to 5 to 2.

Texas is quoted at 5 to 2 over Colorado, but the southerners should be a longer price than that. And the books can't expect much action when they quote Mississippi State at the same price over Florida.

Missouri is 2 to 1 over St. Louis; Southern California is held at the same price over Washington State and Iowa State at that figure over Denver.

Ordinarily you could write your own ticket on Navy against William and Mary, but the bookies must have heard something for they are quoting only 3 to 1 over W. & M. one of the Army coaches told the writer last night that W. & M. is really loaded this time and advised us to make a bet that Navy wouldn't win by more than one touchdown. We broached this proposition to several bookies today but they said "nothing doing."

Believe it or not, Ohio State is 3 to 1 over Pitt and the same price goes for Texas Christian over Centenary; Santa Clara over Utah and Virginia over Lehigh. One of those shortenders might surprise.

Colgate is 4 to 1 over Akron and at 5 to 1 we find the bookies confidently offering Purdue over Butler, Brown over Wesleyan; Oregon State over Idaho; Duke over V. M. I.; and Vanderbilt over W. & L.

Washington is only 7 to 5 over Minnesota in one of the day's biggest intersectional games and the bookies here are wondering if they are not too liberal.

If anybody thinks that St. Lawrence has a chance to beat Dartmouth or that Geneva may take Carnegie, why, the generous bookies will let that individual write his own ticket.

No prices are quoted on parlays or point handicaps but the bookies say they will write that kind of a slate once they get a good line on all the teams.

MAX BAER WINS IN FIRST ROUND

Pat Comiskey Fails To Put Up Fight Against Veteran Of Squared Ring

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—Running strictly to form, Max Baer today, paradoxically, was the hero of a fiasco.

The former heavyweight champion who in his day has built many a bon-fire with the candles he burned at both ends suddenly found somewhere in himself the urge to fight and to win by a knockout in an unbelievably bizarre encounter. The victim, of course, was Patrick Edward Comiskey, whose career probably has been blasted for good. He wasn't only beaten in two minutes and 39 seconds, he was humiliated by the outcome of the fight.

Comiskey was the 7 to 5 favorite going into the ring and at 19 quite logically figured to batter down the more or less dissipated bulk of the 31-year-old former titleholder.

Instead, Comiskey was made to look like the novice he is in the Jersey City ball park last night, in a dramatic interruption to his career, and a rehabilitation of Baer as a fighter.

Actually overweight at 223 1/2 pounds against Comiskey's finely drawn 207 1/2, Baer seemed to know, too, that he had to win quick because he might not be able to go the scheduled 15 rounds. What he did then was to lead Comiskey on to a few futile stabs before the under way he was terrific—so terrific that Referee Dempsey's face lost all its color when he was caught by the drama and excitement of the moment.

Baer landed a right hand that left the left side of Comiskey's face looking like somebody had belted him with a ripe tomato. The former champion then weaved away from Comiskey's feeble leads and followed with a body attack with a beautiful deadly right hand to the chin. Comiskey dropped where he stood over the by the ring ropes then struggled to his feet at four, and sensing his predicament immediately dropped to his knees again to take a nine count. He finally made it back to his feet by the hardest effort and was greeted by a salvo that knocked him into and draped him over the ropes, helpless and badly beaten.

Referee Dempsey stepped in and officially brought a first round finish to the battler who was supposed to be built into an opponent for Joe Louis and for the heavyweight championship next year.

OPEN LETTERS

TO YOUNG MEN IN THE COUNTY

FELLOWS: The law of averages says that 86 of you will be called for military training before the end of 1940. Pickaway County has 3,430 residents eligible for the Federal Draft, according to War Department figures. It estimates that one out of every 40 who register on October 16 will be called for service. That makes 86 of you. Some of you have jobs, some of you are in business for yourselves, and some of you are still in college. But all of you have been trained in free public schools, have worshipped in free churches and have enjoyed the privileges of a free and democratic government—the only great democratic government not actively engaged in a struggle for its existence. You are being asked to sacrifice some of those democratic principles now to guarantee them to the Americans of the future. The government is not asking you to go to war; it is merely providing you with a year's military training in order that you may be prepared to better defend yourselves in case war comes. The fallacy of throwing poorly trained men into active combat was clearly established during the World War. The government does not care to make the same mistake again. If the time ever comes when you are called on for active combat service, your military training experience will greatly reduce the number of Pickaway Gold Star Mothers in the future.

TO THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

GENTLEMEN: Circleville is a farmer's town. It has some of the characteristics of a metropolis, but it is still a farmer's town. It has several industries, but those industries are dependent on the farmers for their existence—and the farmers are dependent on those industries. There has existed in years gone by an underlying feeling between the residents of Circleville and those of Pickaway County that the city and the county are two distinct social orders, each existing and functioning independently of the other. Such a feeling is detrimental to the existence of any community. At your meeting Tuesday evening, you agreed to co-operate with the 4-H Clubs and other rural groups in promoting the Junior Livestock Show as a part of the Pumpkin Show this year. You voted to contribute awards to those having entries in the livestock show and four of your members agreed to send a boy to the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago this fall. County Agent F. K. Blair has stated that your willingness to help was even greater than he had expected. Your good-will gesture will do much to establish Circleville as a livestock market, but more important, it will go a long way toward breaking down any barrier between Circleville as a city and Pickaway County as a rural community.

CIRCUITEER.

TO I. W. KINSEY

SIR: An orchid of the week goes to you for your promotion as president of the Circleville Chamber of Commerce. You have worked diligently and ably as vice-president of the organization and as one of the leaders in its Retail Merchants' division, and now you are taking over active leadership of the organization as a result of Ray E. Rowland's promotion in the business in which he is engaged. The Circleville Chamber has a big job to do, one that will require much of your time, but I feel certain that you, with assistance of other officers and members of the organization, will carry on nobly in the interests of the community. Congratulations to you for accepting the position.

CIRCUITEER.

TO CITY OFFICIALS

SIRS: It was pointed out to you very definitely this week that the three mill levy that Circleville will ballot on November 5 is vitally important to the operation of the city government. On its success will depend the continued operation of the municipal government. The schools, too, may benefit from the proceeds that will be derived from the levy in that the city may be better able to operate with less from the general tax fund. It is my wish that all of you who are responsible for the success of the local government realize the importance of the levy and do all you can to assure its approval. Circleville has had several bond issues on the ballot at various times in the last few years, and lack of support from the persons who sponsored them resulted in their failing to receive a sufficient number of votes to be passed. I hope that none of you will go to sleep at the switch, but that all of you in council and in other city government posts will go to bat for the three mill levy, if you want it to pass. If you want it defeated, do nothing at all about seeking support for the measure. There is a chance, I believe, that the levy may receive a sufficient vote, if you go to work in its favor.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SCOUT TROOP 205

YOUTHS: Congratulations to you fellows for winning the district flag at the Court of Honor this week. Although several of the troops of the district did not compete in the Court, it is still an honor that should make you fellows feel proud. The troop having the largest percentage of promotions during a given period wins the flag, which it retains until the next Court is conducted. I hope, that by the time another Honor Court is staged that Scouting interest in the district will have increased sufficiently to attract representations from all the active troops. Boy Scout work should be developed in Pickaway County, and you fellows who are already members of troops should do your best to enroll other youths of your communities in the truly American movement.

CIRCUITEER.

WORLD AT A GLANCE . . . . .

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

RADIO AUDIENCES don't get the full beauty of some of the political debates we're having in connection with the pending presidential campaign. Plenty of the really snappy comment on these occasions comes, not from the official speakers, but from the crowds physically present in the various auditoriums or outdoor arenas where the events are pulled off, and the numerous interjections are from sources too distant from the mike to be caught by listeners-in at a distance.

We recently had such an affair in Washington between Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes and Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, and published accounts of it didn't begin to do the performance justice.

In the first place, it wasn't properly a debate. That is to say, Ickes and Bridges didn't talk back and forth. Each had a long speech prepared in advance. There was no exchange of views. They simply were two independent speeches. They were, respectively, fully vituperative enough, but there wasn't much of a discussion until after the two formal addresses were invited from the gang in the background.

Bridges had referred to the Roosevelt regime as a "candy stick government." Ickes, somewhat belatedly, had replied that a candy stick was better than an "all day sucker."

"Yah!" yowled a chap in the rear of the hall. "An all day sucker! We've been two-term suckers. Are we going to be three-term suckers?"

WILLKIE'S NEXT SPEECH

"Throw that man out," shrieked a woman, from another quarter. "He's a Nazi."

"When," shrieked a second woman, "is Willkie going to make a fresh address?"

"Whadda you care?" roared a man, seated nearby. "I know you. You're a Democrat."

"You bet I am," shrieked the woman. "That's why I want Willkie to go on talking. Every time he opens his mouth he helps us."

"Sorry, ma'am" interposed Senator Sherman Minton of Indiana, "but Willkie's lost his voice. He can't talk any more—fortunately for him."

"No," yelled a voice from the gallery. "Willkie can't talk and Roosevelt can't walk. It's a stand-off."

The nominal subject of the debate was "The New Deal and National Defense." I don't quite understand how such repartee was germane to it, but it's what was indulged in.

FIFTH COLUMN ACTIVITIES

Fifth columnism in the United States was referred to.

Initially the administration was mentioned by one of its supporters as having done good work in curbing the columnists' activities.

"Phooey!" screamed an anti-administrationist. "If 'F. D. R.' hadn't protected alien saboteurs in our midst we wouldn't have had that munitions plant explosion in New Jersey."

"What's more," shouted a sympathizer with this thesis, "if FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover weren't muzzled, we already would have pinched the miscreants who perpetrated it."

Some members of the audience even raised a howl that the other half would be better for a bath—and the other half reciprocated. What the problem had to do with "The New Deal and National Defense" is an issue for anybody to guess at. It was exciting, though, and I don't believe that the radio audience entirely appreciated it. That is, I surmise that distant radio auditors didn't hear it.

Of course there was a deal of boo-ing and hissing and numerous cat-calls. Possibly the mike transmitted some of these manifestations. But I still don't think that the general public gets, over the air, a complete appreciation of a political debate's gingery possibilities at a critical juncture like the present one.

Growing Up With Vitamins

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Of the six most thoroughly studied vitamins—those substances so necessary for our physical and mental welfare—five are found in plant food. Only one—Vitamin D—is found exclusively in animal food. And the human body itself, like the animals from whose flesh we get our supply, can manufacture Vitamin D out of simple chemical elements with the help of sunshine.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Plants themselves are greatly affected by vitamins in the soil. We have all heard stories lately about adding Vitamin B to soil and the marvelous giant plants that result. But B is only one of the hormones and vitamins necessary to plants.

The experiments with Vitamin B on plants are, however, of great interest. This vitamin can be isolated in pure crystalline form so experimenters can know what they are doing. It stimulates root growth particularly. The roots of flax, for instance, placed in nutrient solution of mineral salts, nitrogen and sucrose will not grow, but if 1 in 10,000,000 parts of Vitamin B is added to the mixture, the root tips will grow an inch a day indefinitely, or as long as the nutrient material holds out.

Power of Fertilizers
Amateur gardeners, moreover, find that Vitamin B added to soil will result in large and hardier plants. Unknown to agriculturists the secret of the power of fertilizers has been the vitamin content. The amount of vitamins present need be very small—eight five-grain tablets of selected vitamins, I am told, might be dissolved in the water required to irrigate an acre of land for a year. Excesses of the vitamin, indeed, seem to do more harm than good. Important economic crops like corn, wheat and tomatoes do not require any extra vitamin fertilization.

Through a long process of selection they seem to have acquired the ability to manufacture their own vitamins for soil fertilization.

Of course that is the natural way for plants to obtain their vitamins. Plants are isolationists. They do not need to enter into reciprocal trade agreements. From air and sunlight they manufacture the substance of their bodies. Man and the animals have to depend on the products of the plants to build up their body substance.

Apply It to Man
Some hormones added to plants affect not the growth of the plant but the reproductive functions—sexual fruiting can thus be produced without natural pollination. The period of dormancy may be prolonged or shortened so that the seasonal cycle changes in the plant world are varied, even obliterated. Leaves may be caused to grow upward (hypostasy) or downward (epinasty) contrary to the plant's usual habit.

All this experimental work—so new and surprising and stimulating—makes us wish to apply it to man and his growth and functions. Undoubtedly that is one of the strong tendencies of the science of the age, and our attack in the future will not be so much towards intensive study of the cause and cure of particular diseases as of influencing growth and fertility of new generations.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Indigestion and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

FOR A WHILE Gun was absorbed by contemplation of the danger that confronted two great cities—a danger that, outside of the gang who were promoting this piece of villainy, was known alone to him. He was the only person who could stop it—prevent the death or maiming of dozens, perhaps hundreds, of innocent people.

He realized, suddenly, that his life was doubly, trebly—precious now, and with the realization came the thought of time.

He looked at his watch again, and saw that he had already seriously overstayed his time. He had to get back to the bedroom, restore the keys, and seem to be asleep once more before that infernal alarm went off.

He looked at the clock. Their arrangements should be precisely the same, Gun replaced the slim but infinitely significant letter files in the drawer, unlocked it, and then, moving as swiftly as the need for silence permitted, let himself out of the office, easing the lock with the key so that there should be no click as the door closed once more.

Then, through the kitchen, and back into the bedroom. Thank goodness, Trent had not moved, and his breathing still was on the same deep, even note.

A glance at the clock dismayed Gun. Only a bare five minutes left before the alarm went, and those keys had to be got back without waking the sleeper. The effect of the pellet would be wearing off, too, by now.

Gun crouched beside the bed, and got to work. Hell! Trent had grabbed the covering clothes in his hand, and was holding them tightly, close to his face, thus barring the space by which the keys would have to be replaced in their old position.

Somehow Gun managed to unloose the fingers, one by one, using infinite care and gentleness. Once Trent groaned, and Gun's heart jumped. The perspiration was standing out on his forehead as he worked, but it was not his own life he was worrying about now—it was the lives of the innocent men, women and children which now depended on his.

The fingers unclasped at last. Gun did not dare look at the clock—even that would take time. He laid the keys on the bed by the pillow with care, so that they should not jingle, and then, with the tip of his forefinger, slowly pushed them along under the pillow. His bent head was close to that of the sleeper, and the man's hot breath impinged on his own sweating face.

Inch by inch, with his heart beating faster every moment, and the tick-tick of that accursed clock seemed to measure out the seconds of doom.

Gun worked the keys around the cold muzzle of the automatic, and then commenced to push that around to the position in which it had been when he first interfered with it.

And then, with a clatter that seemed to shake the whole universe, the alarm sprang, and the whole room was filled with a concatenation of sound that sounded in Gun's ears like the world crashing to pieces about him.

Across the breakfast table the man who now called himself Otto Britton stared sulkily at his companion, who did not seem in the least disturbed by the regard.

When Prescott had put her down as an actress he had certainly not been far wrong. Without any stage or make-up to help her, she was certainly a superlative actress—for no one who had seen and heard her in the company of X and Toni would have recognized her as the same girl.

It was not that her appearance was any different—in any physical essential, that is to say. But in some way she seemed to exude a different atmosphere. With them no one would have taken her for anything but a girl of birth and breeding, but now, in the company of this man there was a certain devil-may-care hardness and defiance about her which any genuine denizen of the underworld would immediately have recognized and appreciated. She was "a tough lane."

"Look here, big boy, let's get this straight, shall we?"

She achieved this in the simplest possible manner—a slightly different expression in the eyes; a hardness about the mouth; a faint swagger in the gait like a young hussar! a habit of carrying her bag held to her hip, and a certain harshness introduced into the really musical contralto voice—all this contributed to the effect.

"Well," she observed, "You're looking a bit sick this morning, Otto. What's eating you?"

He stared straight into her face with gloomy eyes, and answered, slowly:

"It is you!"

Actually, though no one would have dreamed it from her appearance, her heart was beating fast. For this was the critical moment—it was now or never, if she was to successfully carry out her plan of inducing him to take her with him.

"Me, eh?" Her voice grew shrill with annoyance. "And what in hell am I supposed to have done, anyway?"

He made an impatient, but enigmatically, gesture with his hand, rose abruptly, and walked to the window.

Over his shoulder he said, as he did so: "You flirt too much!" and then stood staring out at the street below, obviously without seeing anything.

Her laugh was like a shout. "What do you mean, I flirt too much? Who's to say that, I should like to know, except me? I'm my own mistress, aren't I?"

To this he only repeated, without turning his head:

"You flirt too much!"

She laughed again, with a scorn that stung.

"Well, if you don't like it, you can lump it! You haven't bought me, you know!"

The words sounded careless enough, but actually they were carefully planned. She was giving him an opening.

And he fell for it. He turned suddenly, and stood, with his back to the window, glowing at her.

"No, I have not bought you—yet! But maybe I will, though! Are you for sale?"

The speech sounded like a threat, but she only laughed again, perfectly at her ease.

"Perhaps I am," she retorted. "At a price."

"So?" he murmured softly. "And—what is the price?" Although he knew well enough, for there had been conversations of this sort before.

She shrugged her shoulders in a deliberately provocative manner which, she knew, would have its effect.

"Oh, the usual—furs, smart gowns, jewels, automobiles . . ."

"So . . ." he said again, and walked slowly toward her, but only as far as the other side of the table, where he paused. He leaned forward, gripping the edge of the table with his big, strong hands and continued:

"And will you marry me, smart girl?"

She looked him steadily in the eyes. Her own were as bright as diamonds—and as hard.

"I'll marry you, quick enough," she told him, "when you can give me what I want. When will that be, eh?"

"Very soon now," he answered. "Two or three weeks, maybe. Not longer."

"That sounds fine," she sneered. "But—I seem to have heard it before."

She moved suddenly from her chair, and across the room to the big mirror over the mantelpiece. For a moment or two she stood, with her back to him, staring at her reflection in the glass. Then she swung around on him.

"Look here, big boy, let's get this straight, shall we? I've just been taking stock, as you saw—and I can see right enough that I can't afford to hang around much longer. Old age moves fast with the times. I'm sick of knocking around, and I want to settle down and have a place of my own, and all that. I'm not fussy where it is—London, Paris, New York, it's much the same to me, so long as I have the trimmings."

"Well, well! I tell you—very soon I will give you all these."

She made a gesture of impatience.

TEN DIFFERENT nationalities claim to have discovered America—but Christopher Columbus gets the credit. This is, perhaps, just another example of the value of publicity.

The island of Java, one of the Dutch East Indies, has 125 volcanoes. No wonder neither Adolf or Benito say anything about annexing it.

Vaudeville, according to a theatrical item, may stage a comeback. This may be good news for a lot of those unemployed kings wandering around Europe.

The name of former French Premier Blum, arrested by the French war guilt investigators, is pronounced, we are told, to rhyme with "gloom."

However, Zadok Dumbkopf, looking over our shoulder, insists it rhymes with "glum." As though it would make any difference!

A scientist says that love is a form of electricity. Perhaps that's what the old-fashioned folk meant when they spoke of "sparking."

Times change. Who ever thought a Britisher, awakening to find a black sky, a torrential downpour, and a gale whipping the channel, would murmur "What a beautiful day!"

According to automobile mileage the Lincoln highway is 3,323 miles long.

The Use and Abuse of Wealth

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Newman Campbell

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for September 29 is Proverbs 11; Luke 16:1-13, the Golden Text being Matt. 6:20, "Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven.")

IT IS wonderful to have been a poor boy or girl and to have risen to riches by your own industry, intelligence, ambition and integrity. But if, after the riches are yours, you become haughty, disloyal to your old friends or family, toadying to those whom you think will advance your interests, either socially or in a business way, you will have gained nothing. In fact, you will have lost a far more precious possession than money. You will be a smaller and meaner person than you were before. Your success will be worse than failure. "When pride cometh, then cometh shame; but with the lowly is wisdom."

Money can buy much that should give us happiness. It can make us physically comfortable. We will have plenty to eat, nice clothes and a comfortable place to live. It will pay our debts and take care of our bills when we are ill. It cannot, however, save us from physical suffering or make us really happy. Our lovely home may be the loneliest and most miserable place in the world if we do not have loved ones to share it with us.

And if, by chance, we have gained our riches dishonestly, taking what does not belong to us, either by means of highway robbery or dishonest business methods, we never will be happy, but like the king who wears a crown, our heads will lie uneasily on our pillows, afraid that we will be found out and disgraced.

"Use and Abuse of Money"

Our lesson today is on the right and wrong ways of using wealth — "the use and abuse" of it. The 11th proverb is all about those who make a wrong use of money and those who make a right use of it. Not all persons who are poor are righteous and "acceptable unto the Lord" by any means. Poverty, in fact, often fosters conditions that make people steal and do other wrongs. But it is still true that the temptation to make money, whether by fair means or false, and to accumulate more, is the cause of many a moral downfall.

"Riches profit not in the day of wrath," says the writer of Proverbs, presumably Solomon. He rebukes those who hold merchandise back from those who need it when the price is low, and then sell it at exorbitant prices to make a lot of money for themselves. "He that withholdeth corn, the people shall curse him; but blessing shall be upon the head of him that selleth it."

Money can be used only in this world. It cannot be taken with us. It may not even be a help to those we leave behind, but may make them mere seekers after pleasure and mischief-makers instead of useful citizens of the world.

Gossips or "talebearers" are rebuked in another verse of the Proverb: "A talebearer revealeth secrets; but he that is a faithful spirit concealeth the matter."

"A gracious woman retaineth honor," the Proverb says, and goes on to speak of the merciful man of whom Jesus said: "He shall obtain mercy." "The merciful man doeth good to his soul; but he that is cruel troubleth his own flesh."

Parable of Dishonest Steward

The latter part of the lesson is taken from Luke 16, where Jesus tells a parable about a dishonest steward who was found out and dismissed from his master's service, but who cleverly provided for himself so that he would not have to do menial work or beg.

A steward was the agent of his master, collecting rents, overseeing the work of the estates and keeping the records. The master found out about his crooked transactions and dismissed him from his service. So the man went to those who owed his master a great deal of material and arranged that they should pay said master only a part and the rest should be saved for him. He was a clever rogue, but I wonder how happy he was in living on such ill-gotten gains.

Jesus concludes the parable by saying: "If, therefore, ye have not been faithful in the unrighteous mammon, how will ye be faithful in the true riches?"

"And if ye have not been faithful in that which is another's, who will give you that which is your own?"

"No servant can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon."

We can make our choice. Either we choose to "lay up for ourselves treasures in heaven," by living righteously, being honorable, kindly, merciful, just, understanding; or we can simply seek this world's wealth and ignore the finer parts of our nature. But we are warned by that wise man, Solomon, that

"He that illigently seeketh good procureth favor; but he that seeketh mischief, it shall come unto him."

"He that trusteth in his riches shall fall; but the righteous shall flourish as a branch."

BOY SCOUT PROGRAM TO BE EXTENDED TO RURAL DISTRICTS

1,500 PICKAWAY COUNTY YOUTHS TO BE SOUGHT

Effort Being Made To Lift District Out Of Poor Classification

MEMBERSHIP IS SLIDING

Participation In Pumpkin Show Discussed; Roll Call Week Planned

A new program, designed to appeal to Pickaway County's rural youth, was outlined by Scout Field Executive Bob Scanland at a meeting of the Pickaway District Boy Scout committee Thursday evening. Scouters hope the newly adopted plan will pull many of the 1,500 boys in the county eligible scouting age into active participation in the scouting program and clear the Pickaway County area from the title of "sick district."

Within the next few days, Field Executive Scanland will visit Pickaway County schools and solicit the help of faculty members in setting up the new program. Instead of troops, tribes will be organized under the leadership of scoutmasters, and tribe meetings will be held monthly instead of weekly as is the case with regular scout troops. Emphasis will be placed, not on the tribes but on neighborhood patrols within the tribes. Neighborhood patrols will consist of eight or more farm boys and will be headed by a neighborhood patrol leader. Programs, specially designed for rural boys will be set up. C. D. Early, chairman of the committee on organization and extension, will be in charge of the tribe program for the county.

One In Operation

Such a program is now being established at Commercial Point, under the direction of Charles Shipley, Field Executive Scanland told scout executives at the meeting, and said he hoped the plan would be adopted in other villages and schools in the county.

Scout executives generally believed the plan would stimulate new interest in the county, where ten troops, consisting of 123 scouts have lost 28 members in the last year. Only two troops in the county have increased their enrollment over 1939.

Dan McClain, chairman of the camping and activities committee, outlined for scout leaders proposed plans for scout participation in the Pumpkin Show. Scouts will be used in the information and first aid booth and also to direct traffic, he reported. Dr. J. J. Baker is senior member in charge of the Boy Scout department this year, with Scout David Orr, Troop 158, Circleville, junior member. Nature, handicraft and scoutcraft displays will be exhibited.

With the present feeling of Nationalism in the country, plans for a National "Boy Scout roll call for the strengthening and invigorating of democracy" were discussed. On October 28 Boy Scouts throughout the county will meet, each troop separately, to be given an "Americanization Pledge." The gesture will be a part of a National Boy Scout program, the pledge being taken by all scouts in the nation.

Drive Fund Short

Charles Goeller, chairman of the scout finance committee, reported the county is still nearly $250 short of its $750 quota. Service clubs will be contacted at their next meetings in an effort to bring the scout drive to a close, he said.

Other scouters who made reports at the meeting were Virgil Cress, chairman of the leadership training committee, and David Goldschmidt, chairman of troop service committee. District Chairman James I. Smith, assisted by Vice-Chairman William Radcliff and the Rev. Robert T. Kelsey were in charge of the meeting.

BRITAIN BUILDS BIGGER BOMBERS THAN U. S. OWNS

LONDON, Sept. 27 — Great Britain now has gigantic bombers more powerful than the large-size American type, the London Daily Sketch reported today.

With a full-load range of several thousand miles, the new planes, capable of a terrific speed, carry forward-firing machine guns and other secret armaments, the newspaper revealed.

These bombers have not yet been used against Germany, but British pilots are "itching" to take them to Berlin, the Sketch reported.

TEACHER AT N. HOLLAND HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Overturning her automobile on a curve on the Springfield Road just north of Jeffersonville, Thursday, Mrs. Frank Brown, a teacher in the New Holland Schools, was severely cut and bruised. Although her injuries were painful, her condition was not reported to be critical.

Mrs. Brown was returning to her home in New Holland after having spent the night visiting in Springfield when her car skidded and overturned, finally stopping against the fence in front of the Leroy Booco home. Booco took Mrs. Brown to a Jeffersonville physician for treatment. Her husband went to Jeffersonville and took her back to New Holland.

PETTENGILL "The Gentleman from Indiana"

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

In 1800 Federal employees totaled only 54 persons. Their books and papers were transported from Philadelphia to Washington in "seven small and five large boxes." If their number had increased in proportion to population they would now number about 1,400 persons. If they had grown only 100 times as fast as the taxpayers the number would be 140,000. As the number is now over 1,000,000 the bureaucrats have increased 700 times as fast as the people.

That the dislocation of war is such that it took Germany, Russia, France and Italy from 11 to 21 years to recover the same production of hogs, cotton, wheat, rye, and corn as they had in 1914. This gives some indication of the low standard of living, if not famine and starvation that now faces Europe for years to come.

That during the first 70 years of the Republic, per capita expenditure of the Federal government averaged $1.76 a year. For the last fiscal year the cost per person was $100.84. For a family of four PETTENGILL this averages over $400 a year, or $33.50 a month. This is somewhat more than the average family pays for house rent.

That 20 billion dollars authorized to be spent by a single Congress is more than total value in 1936 of all stocks and bonds of all companies operating and manufacturing railroads, railway equipment, electrical equipment, farm machinery, automobiles, and the entire paper and publishing industry.

That the public debt per capita is about $472, or $1889 per family. The debt is 42 percent of the current value of all homes in America. And rearmament begins at this point.

That the largest natural flood in the history of the Tennessee Valley covered 541,000 acres of land for only a few days. T. V. A. has permanently flooded 917,000 acres.

That agricultural appropriations in 1910 were only $12,647,000, and in 1940, over 100 times as much, or $1,290,296,000. Yet the farmer is farther from "parity" with the industrial worker than 30 years ago.

That between 1933-7 we disbursed $1.8 billion to kill pigs, destroy crops, and reduce acreage. In the same period we spent $2.3 billion for new irrigation, drainage, conservation and reclamation.

That we have taken 36,000,000 acres out of cultivation, but brought 15,000,000 new acres into production and furnished an American market for 17,000,000 additional acres owned in foreign lands.

That we have reduced cotton acreage over 15,000,000 acres which has deprived 1,000,000 persons of their former employment.

That Harry Bridges said only three years ago, "Our policy is one of class struggle. We have nothing in common with employers. Sometime there won't be any employing class any more and we look forward to that day." Yet Secretary Perkins is not convinced that Bridges is a Communist.

Aunt Sammy issues bulletin on Reindeer Recipes, and the food value of taro, udo wiloof, the word "udo" not appearing in Webster's Unabridged. For these and its other documents the Government Printing Office uses annually 190 tons of ink.

That strikes cost the nation, in one way or another, $59.02 per man per day. Total strike costs in 1933-37 were $5.6 billions.

That land now owned by the Federal government equals the total acreage of all States east of the Mississippi River, except Alabama, Florida, Georgia and Mississippi. Nearly all of this property, worth $5 billion, is tax exempt.

That 165,000 new homes have been acquired by Uncle Sam by HOLC foreclosures.

That in January 1940, the Federal government mailed 12,403,259 checks. This means that every third family is being supported in part at least from the Federal treasury.

That Uncle Sam has over 400 full time publicity writers averaging from $3600 to $12,000 a year. These gentlemen average about 1600 canned newspaper releases a month, or over 60 per week day. The Post Office in 1939 handled 970,764,376 pieces of free departmental mail.

That in 1933-39 total relief expenditures were $19.5 billions. This was all added to the national debt and is greater than the total assets of the ten largest life insurance companies in the United States.

That the budget messages during the past seven years, on the average, underestimated expenditures by 25 percent and overestimated receipts by 10 percent.

All these and hundreds of other interesting facts about your government can be found in the new book by Lawrence Sullivan, "The Dead Hand of Bureaucracy". SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

WRITE-IN ONLY WAY OPEN FOR PARTY CHOICES

COLUMBUS, Sept. 27—Writing in the names of their candidates was the only method Communists in Ohio had today to vote for their party choices.

The state supreme court, after a brief hearing denied the Communists' application for a writ of mandamus to compel Secretary of State George Treffner to place the name of their candidates on the November ballot. Neffner said the petitions fell below the required quota as to the number of valid signatures, thus ending the case abruptly.

WALKER SPEAKS AT POSTOFFICE CONFAB FRIDAY

COLUMBUS, Sept. 27 — The arrival and address of the newly appointed postmaster general, Frank C. Walker, today was to highlight the 40th annual convention of the National Association of Postmasters.

Approximately 5,000 of the nation's 44,000 postmasters were on hand for the opening day ceremonies. The failure of the convention to start on time caused the delegates to miss a welcome from Gov. John W. Bricker.

The chief executive arrived soon after 9 a. m. but when the convention had not started at 10 o'clock, Bricker expressed his regrets. He had a previous speaking engagement at Miami University at 1 p. m.

Former Postmaster General James Farley is scheduled to arrive at the sessions tomorrow morning. He will be the guest of honor and the object of a farewell party tomorrow night.
